

Roosevelt Trophies Being Gathered for Memorial Exhibit

Spectacle Case Hit by Bullet of Assassin Is to Be a Feature; Complete Collection of Manuscripts on View

Details of plans for the Roosevelt Memorial Exhibition, which will be held in the library of Avery Hall at Columbia University during May and June, were made public by university officials yesterday.

Hundreds of exhibits symbolic of virtually every phase of the life of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt have been received at the university. Professor W. A. Braun, director of Columbia House and chairman of the memorial exhibition committee, announced that plans for the exhibit have been developed in connection with the campaign for the Americanization of adult aliens which he is directing.

Joseph B. Bishop, Colonel Roosevelt's biographer and literary executor, is in charge of the literary section, a feature of which will be a complete collection of Colonel Roosevelt's messages, copies of addresses, newspaper and magazine articles and letters.

Professor Braun announced the receipt of the manuscript of the speech Colonel Roosevelt delivered the night he was shot in Milwaukee, during the campaign of 1912. The spectacle case which was pierced by the would-be assassin's bullet also has reached the university.

Another section will be illustrative of Colonel Roosevelt's career as hunter, explorer and naturalist. It will include trophies from Africa, South America and the West. Many trophies are being contributed by the American Museum of Natural History. Others are from the Colonel's collection and from public and private collections. Carl Akeley, who accompanied Colonel Roosevelt on his African trip, will have charge of this section.

A special scheme of decoration for Exhibition Hall has been developed by William A. Boring, professor of architecture.

Herman Hagedorn is to write a souvenir booklet on the exhibition. The membership of the exhibition committee, as announced yesterday, follows: Professor W. A. Braun, chairman; Carl Akeley, Joseph B. Bishop, Professor William A. Boring, Dr. Nicholas Frederic R. Goudet, Professor John J. Coss, Otto H. Kahn, Herman Hagedorn, Frederick C. Hays, Dr. Charles H. Crawford, William Loeb, Jr.; Clarence H. Mackay, William Fellows Morgan, George Haven Putnam and Walter A. Sherwood.

Astor Commanding U-Boat

Wealthy Lieutenant Makes Good His Pre-War Declaration

When Vincent Astor, now a lieutenant in the navy, went to war he told his friends, who gave him a farewell party:

"I won't come back from over there until I can bring a German U-boat with me!"

He has made good his word, and is on his way home second in command of the U-57, one of the four German submarines which are bound for America to help make successful the Victory Loan. Naval officers yesterday received these advices, which were confirmed by Mrs. Astor, Lieutenant Commander H. Gibson is in charge of the U-57. The other undersea craft on the way here are the U-58, U-117 and U-148.

Benefit Concert Postponed

The concert which was to have been given Easter Sunday, April 20, in the Metropolitan Opera House for the benefit of La Protection du Reforms No. 2, the French society formed to aid French soldiers retired for disability, has been postponed until a later date in the spring.

Circus Folk Spurn April Fool's Day Pranks of Clowns

"Of Course, I'm No Feminist," Insists the Diminutive Mrs. Doll, Just Wed; Press Agent Busy as Fixer

April came to New York yesterday and made a prompt visit to the circus in Madison Square Garden. But if it had not been for the clowns it is doubtful whether the other circus folk would have recognized the yearly visitor.

For down in the arcaways, where the animals live, it was cold-cold, circus men said, than it has been for years when the big show comes to town. The hon curled up in his cage to keep warm, and the rest of the animals huddled behind the woolen walls of their wagons.

If it hadn't been for the clowns—

But they, of course, being clowns, remembered that their day of days had come, and from morning until night no spot in Madison Square Garden was sacred or spared the tricks which they contrived for celebrating April Fool's Day. It is said that one of them alarmed Louis, the giraffe, swallow an alarm clock, but Louis refused to discuss this report.

Midget "Doll" No Safragist

The greatest stir of all was caused when some clown named Ringling's Show, the new midget from Ringling's Show, had turned feminist over night and was proaching the rights of the platform where she is accustomed to show her tiny self.

"It's a ridiculous libel," Mrs. Doll asserted when questioned. "I, vote? Indeed, I do not intend to. I do not believe in woman's suffrage, and besides—Mrs. Doll, just six months a bride, looked at her diminutive husband, who was sitting just out of earshot—"midget, you don't look like a clever woman. Of course, we can be clever, but we must never let them know about it."

"What is the thing I like to do best?" she said. "Dress and dance. I have twelve evening gowns in my hotel—lovely ones, made by my special dressmaker in Chicago. It's so hard to get a good dressmaker when one is an old size!"

"During the eight days," illness Mrs. Shipplough had been a great success, she said, "I have been in bed for four years. Besides clothes, I love a good time, too."

Elephant Yields to Glib Tongue

Mrs. Doll is twenty-four years old. During the war she knitted many a muffler for the soldiers, she admitted yesterday, and she has acted in several war benefits. She spent a season at Coney Island several years ago—"and the subway conductors remembered me when I came back this year," she said.

At this point in the interview there was an interruption from the elephant area. The only Barnum & Bailey elephant in his show, Albert, who has private property, was performing in the basement, had been robbed of his private stock. Late in the afternoon the circus press agent succeeded in talking Albert back into good nature.

"I am a tame elephant," he said, "but I am not a tame elephant. They expect something extra of the clowns," the press agent said. "But thank goodness, say I, when April Fool's Day is over."

Miss Bliss Is Bride To-day

Will Become Wife of Officer at Grace Church

Miss Ruth B. Bliss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Phelps Bliss, will be married this afternoon in the chancel of Grace Church to Captain Hermann C. Schwab, U. S. A. Only members of the two families will be present at the ceremony, which will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Charles Lewis Slatery, assisted by the Rev. William G. Thayer, of St. Mark's School. The ceremony will be followed by a small reception at the home of the bride's parents, 6 East Eighty-seventh Street.

Another marriage to-day will be that of Miss Gertrude B. Williams, daughter of George L. Williams, of New York, and Mrs. Peabody. The Rev. Mr. Peabody was at one time assistant rector of Trinity Church, Newport. The wedding will take place in June.

Mrs. Henry H. McClure Wins Suit for Divorce

Jury Exonerates Woman; Finds Husband Guilty of Misconduct With Servant

The jury in the divorce case of Henry H. McClure against his wife, Mrs. Frances C. McClure, returned a verdict last night exonerating Mrs. McClure and finding her husband guilty of misconduct with a servant.

Neil R. White was named as co-respondent by Mrs. McClure. In her counter suit Mrs. McClure named a servant, who was charged with a severe headache had gone to the drugstore for medicine. He went to her bedroom to give it to her, she said, when her husband and detectives broke in.

The jury was out for several hours and returned to the courtroom several times to ask instructions from Justice John V. McAvoy. Mrs. McClure and her husband were in the courtroom when the verdict was brought in. They were congratulated heartily by Mr. White, who also was present.

"Bribe for Senator?" It's April Fool's Day!

This is Comment of Walters at Albany on Story About Huge Streetcar Offer

ALBANY, April 1.—Senator J. Henry Walters, president pro tem, of the Senate, when asked to-night to comment on an evening newspaper story which offered to him a million dollars was offered to the Martin bill permitting public service commissions to increase the rate of fare of street car lines, notwithstanding any existing franchises, contracts or agreements, said:

"The story does not name any senator. It is an anonymous story. If any such bribe were offered it is the duty of the senator to bring the matter to the attention of the bar of the Senate."

Walters was asked the interview by observing that this was April Fool's Day.

Rentpayers' Protection Bill Passes Assembly

Landlords in New York Must Give 14 Days' Notice to Monthly Tenants Before Eviction

ALBANY, April 1.—The Assembly today championed the cause of New York City rent payers by passing the Fertilig bill providing that no monthly tenant shall be removed on the grounds of holding over their term unless at least fourteen days' notice is given by the landlord.

The Senate passed a couple of salary increase bills. One by Senator McGraw provided that the Board of Estimate, may increase the salaries and number of employees in the office of the Queens County Clerk. The other, by Senator Deane, provided for a salary increase from $5,000 to $6,000 a year of the salary of the Deputy County Clerk of Kings and provides for four assistants in the office at $1,500 annually.

The Senate also passed the bill of Senator Charles E. Russell, known as the Long Island Railroad bill, to compel the Long Island Railroad to charge the same fare on all trains between Brooklyn and Jamaica. At present, the road charges more on the express trains than on local ones.

The Assembly defeated the Booth bill, which would require all auto trucks, buses or commercial vehicles, be equipped with mirrors enabling the driver to have a clear view of the road behind.

Aroused From 8-Day Sleep

Wife of Assemblyman Shows Signs of Recovery

Mrs. Abraham I. Shipplough, wife of the former Socialist Assemblyman from the Twenty-third Assembly District, Brooklyn, is recovering from "sleeping sickness" at her home, 180 Saratoga Avenue, near Dumont Avenue, Brownsville.

The woman was aroused from an eight-day coma two days ago and since has been recovering rapidly.

During the eight days' illness Mrs. Shipplough had been a great success, she said, "I have been in bed for four years. Besides clothes, I love a good time, too."

Next Week's Programme at Metropolitan Opera House

"L'Amore del Re" will open the last but one week of the Metropolitan Opera season on Monday evening of next week. It will be sung by Mme. Muzio, Tiffany, Egner, Arden and Mattfield and Messrs. Martinelli, Chalmers, Mardones, Bada and Palmistrini. The programme of the collection, though mostly modern, contains several Empire, Colonial and old English pieces, and a Pook opera baby grand piano and a symphony player. The art objects include paintings, china, French and Chinese vases and hangings.

A number of Oriental rugs, gowns, embroideries and bric-a-brac are also worthy of mention. The sale will continue each afternoon of this week, conducted by Mr. C. E. Smith.

'Wild Life in Art' Is Striking Display at Brooklyn Museum

Paintings and Sculptures Shown, Together With Camouflage and Relics of Old Long Island Whaling

An exhibition of "Wild Life in Art" opened at the Brooklyn Museum yesterday with a private view and reception. The general point of view of the exhibition is to combine the interests of the Natural History Department with those of the Art Department. It is partly devoted to wild life in art, partly to marine camouflage, and partly to relics, implements and memorabilia of the whaling industry, with special reference to its former activities on Long Island.

Under the general designation of "Wild Life in Art" the museum has assembled the work of contemporary American artists in sculpture, painting and black and white, dealing with animal life.

Even in the relics of the whaling industry is found an interesting phase of art in the curious work known as "serimshaw." The sailors of the old whalers had many leisure moments in which to carve and etch in bone and ivory, mainly of whales' teeth.

Paintings in this interesting exhibition are by C. L. Bull, Henri-Car Delville, Lillian Crittenden, E. W. Deming, H. C. Donaldson, Louis Aeneas Puertes, Carton Moore, and others, and the sculptures include groups by Rembrandt Bugatti, James L. Clark, Carl E. Akeley and Eli Nadelman.

Elas Breeskin in Violin

Recital in Carnegie Hall

Another violin recital was added to the season's list with the appearance last night of Elias Breeskin in Carnegie Hall. He is a violinist of many pleasing qualities, and gave a programme of sufficient variety, including numbers from Bach, Tartini, Lalo, Chopin, Beethoven, Godowsky and Wieniawski.

Sincerity and restraint characterize his playing, as well as purity of tone and accuracy of intonation, though he has neither the technical finish nor warmth of temperament that would place him in the first rank. In Lalo's Symphonie Espagnole, accurate as was his reading, something of its languorous Spanish rhythm escaped him, and there was needed in the accompaniment greater warmth of tone, more nearly approximating the orchestral background that the work should have.

He was at his best in nocturns of Chopin and in the clear-cut beauty of Bach's Sonata No. 1. Mr. Josef Adler at the piano furnished throughout sympathetic, if rather colorless, accompaniment.

Another of the Army of Worthy But Uninspired Pianists Heard at Aeolian Hall

Another of the army of pianists appeared yesterday afternoon in recital at Aeolian Hall. He was Harry Campen, and neither by his virtues nor his defects did he show anything to differentiate himself from the other worthy but uninspired pianists who have appeared here before this season. He was earnest, his technique was adequate though far from brilliant, he possessed little color or fire. His playing of the Beethoven Sonata Op. 27, No. 1, was dry and undistinguished. His best work was in the two Moszkowski pieces, "In Autumn" and "Spanish Caprice," both of which he gave with delicacy and good rhythmic feeling.

In the evening Miss Mona Zucca gave a concert in the same auditorium, the programme being devoted to her own compositions. Her songs were sung by Luigi Montesano, Irene Willis, George Reinher, Harriet McConnell and Ruth Bender; there was a violin and piano by Graciana, and Miss Zucca, with Carl Deis played a concerto for two pianos. Perhaps the most enjoyable numbers were the children's songs. Here Miss Zucca is altogether in her element. The audience was of capacity size.
